Government Responsiveness in Race-Related Crisis Events argues that decision-making in crisis events related to race and ethnicity (RRCEs) is distinctive based upon the historical treatment of people of color and current narratives surrounding race in the United States. The author presents racially sensitive crisis events, not as independent problems, but as symptoms of an underlying condition which began upon the country's founding. She contends public officials will need to recognize and draw upon the interrelated nature of these crises for effective solutions and introduces a decision-making model for race-related crisis events. The author uses grounded theory and a critical race lens to explore the decision-making of public officials in Alabama, South Carolina, and Mississippi concerning the removal of the Confederate Flag from state grounds in the aftermath of the 2015 Charleston Church Shooting.

What is the way that societies improve and solve problems? What is the purpose of business in society? Is there a role for markets and business in issues of civic good, justice, equality, education, environment, health or collective action? Current economic principles, which underpin our trust in markets are not value neutral. Therefore, how we design “market solutions” to problems should be the focus of vigorous and open debate. Multi-sector Partnership is a concept that has re-focused us on the meaning of the goods and social practices we value as citizens in a global society. Multi-sector partners emerge in society to offer innovative approaches to dealing with pressing, yet complex, social, economic and weather-related 21st century challenges.

The purpose of this edited volume is to provide academic and practitioners with the essential conceptual frameworks and tools for creating successful Multi-sector ventures, initiatives, programs or partnerships that seek to tackle global social issues and collective action problems.

THE CITY MANAGER'S OFFICE OF KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI

COOKINGHAM-NOLL MANAGEMENT FELLOWS

The city of manager's office of Kansas city are now recruiting for two new Fellows, who will begin the two-year program in June 2023. The application portal is now open and will close on Tuesday, January 31, 2023. Required application materials for the initial stage include a current resume, cover letter, all unofficial academic transcripts, and a City application.

The fellow program are on Handshake and students can apply directly at this link by clicking "OPEN JOBS" and searching "Cookingham-Noll." It offers recent graduates of Public Administration or related master's programs a two-year experience that gives fellows a "360-degree tour of the city." This includes rotations in the City Manager's Office, the Office of Management and Budget, and other departments in which Fellows have an interest. Aside from day-to-day work opportunities, Fellows will also attend and participate in meetings with the City Manager and other City leaders. After the Fellowship concludes, successful participants are recruited by departments to fill available City jobs, and many of our top-level executives began their career in this program.
