WILDFIRE SIMULATION COMPETITION

ODU Students Excel at 2023 Wildfire Simulation Competition

The Old Dominion University (ODU) community congratulates the students who participated in the 2023 Wildfire Simulation Competition on March 11th. The competition, which was held virtually this year, brought together teams from universities across the country to simulate a wildfire outbreak and test their skills in emergency response and public safety.

ODU students performed exceptionally well in the competition, and we are thrilled to announce that Morgan Willett was a winning team. We congratulate Morgan and her teammates for their hard work, dedication, and outstanding performance in this challenging event.

The ODU School of Public Service sponsored the 2023 Wildfire Simulation Competition, and we are proud of our student's success in the competition and grateful to the ODU School of Public Service for sponsoring this event.

Congratulations again to Morgan Willett and all the ODU students who participated in the 2023 Wildfire Simulation Competition.

Graduate Summer Award Program

Deadline for Summer 2023 Award Applications: March 31, 2023 (Friday) by 5:00 p.m.

Number of Awards/Funding Amount: Up to 10 / $3,000 each

Notices of Awards to Recipients: anticipated by April 21 (awards distributed May 2023)

Point of Contact: Dr. Bryan Porter, Associate Dean, bporter@odu.edu, 757-683-3259

Overview

Old Dominion University's Graduate School in partnership with the Office of Research is pleased to announce the 6th annual Graduate Summer Award Program (GSAP). Open to graduate students from across the University, the GSAP is a competitive program that supports a range of original graduate student scholarship, including basic research, field study, data analysis, performances and exhibitions, and community-based learning initiatives. The program can be used to support thesis or dissertation projects or other capstone projects at the master's or doctoral level. The scope of the proposed project should allow the graduate student to produce a measurable research or scholarly product by the end of a minimum of six uninterrupted weeks during the summer months.

Graduate students wishing to apply for this award must identify and approach a faculty member to serve as a mentor during the tenure of the program award. The faculty member may advise the student in creating a strong project proposal, explain the expectations for scholarly activity, supervise the scholarly activity, and provide advice from the proposal stage to the completion of the final report. However, the faculty member is not permitted to produce work on behalf of the student.

Students applying for the award will be the primary investigators for these projects. It is expected that a graduate student with this funding will produce original scholarship. The award is not for lab assistant or graduate assistant duties that support a faculty project.

Period of Award and Time Commitment

This award will be distributed for the summer funding period, specifically paid in the first part of the summer regardless of when in the summer the work occurs. This is required because funds must be distributed prior to the end of FY23.

VIRGINIA SEA GRANT STUDENT FELLOWSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

PARTNER UNIVERSITIES

2023 VIRGINIA SEA GRANT COMMONWEALTH COASTAL & MARINE POLICY FELLOWSHIP

Receive on-the-job training and hone your professional skills while improving the stewardship of the Commonwealth's coastal and marine resources. This fellowship develops and supports post-graduates by partnering them with a state or local government host office mentor. The program also aims to increase the capacity of the host offices by supporting fellows who are working on mission-relevant programs, and leveraging the knowledge and capacity of Virginia's academic institutions.

REAL EXPERIENCE, REAL PROFESSIONAL GROWTH OPPORTUNITIES

Commonwealth Fellows work alongside mentors in their host office to address pressing coastal and marine resource issues, while learning about the policy and management process occurring at the state level. This experience and knowledge have positioned past fellows to be highly competitive for opportunities at the conclusion of the fellowship year. The majority of our alumni have accepted full-time positions at Virginia agencies.
