He, President Broderick and Mr. Ampy met with the Secretary of Administration and agreed on Old Dominion’s aspirational goals. The Executive Committee approved these goals at their meeting on June 19, and the resolution must be ratified by the full Board. Mr. Fenning shared the University’s performance in 2008 and 2009 and noted that goals were exceeded. He feels confident that the institution will continue to aggressively pursue SWaM vendors in order to reach the goals over the next three years.

STRATEGIC PLAN UPDATE

The Rector called on Provost Simpson for the Strategic Plan update. She reviewed the process and the committee structure that allowed for broad participation, and noted that she was seeking further input from the Board before the final draft is released in mid-August.

Provost Simpson reviewed the Plan’s Mission Statement and the elements of the statement that emphasize the key components of the University; namely, metropolitan, research, enriches, rigorous, partnerships, civic engagement. It was suggested that academics ought to appear first in the Mission Statement, before research. It was also noted that those outside of Virginia may not know what area Hampton Roads is referring to, however, the Provost indicated that it was important to recognize Old Dominion’s presence in other cities besides its main campus in Norfolk. In response to a question from Mr. Jacobson, the Provost said that although the Mission Statement does not mention diversity, it is highlighted in the Plan.

President Broderick mentioned that becoming a Top 100 research university was not included in the Plan. He said that, although the University can aspire to that level, it is better to focus instead on the programs that we are already known for, such as Modeling & Simulations and Bioelectrics, as well as those programs that can be elevated to the national level.

Provost Simpson reviewed the six Strategic Goals: (1) provide students with the tools to succeed; (3) promote the strengths of our academic programs and scholarship; (3) invest strategically in research to spur economic growth; (4) enrich the quality of campus life; (5) expand international connections; and (6) build strong civic and community partnerships. She reviewed the objectives for each of the six goals.

Provost Simpson said that progress of the Plan toward its goals and objectives will be monitored on an annual basis and status reports will be published regularly on the University’s website. Regular assessment and evaluation of the academic and non-academic activities noted in the Plan and will form the basis of the University’s annual operating budget. Board members will receive the final version of the Plan in mid-August and would be asked to approve it at their meeting in September.

The Rector commended Provost Simpson for a clear, well-balanced Plan that incorporates many of the points discussed at the Board’s retreat and included in the Institutional Review. President Broderick stated that the Plan is a great opportunity for the University, but help has to come internally in order to be successful. To that end, he has asked Vice President Humphreys for her assistance in getting buy-in by the faculty and staff on the importance of being advocates for the University.

Rector Mugler announced that Board members will be given a tour of the Ainslie Complex in the S.B. Ballard Stadium immediately following the meeting. With no further business to be discussed, the meeting adjourned at 1:20 p.m.
