ONLINE COURSES

Exams in online classes should be made available in a variety of time slots, to include some in both conventional 9-5 working hours and some in evenings, spread over a time period that includes at least one full business day.

SYNCHRONOUS WEB CONFERENCING (WC) COURSES:

- If the entire class is being proctored by the faculty via Zoom, then the exam will be administered during a specified final exam time block assigned to the class.
- If the final exam is unproctored, or if the final exam must be proctored and requires students to schedule with a third-party proctor or testing center, then the window for completing the exam must be at least 36 hours long, to include the official exam time period, but may extend beyond it.

FOR ASYNCHRONOUS WEB COURSES:

- There is no specific day/time reserved for final exams in asynchronous courses. Students must have a window of at least 36 hours to complete the final exam, whether proctored or unproctored.

Students should consult their course syllabus for specific guidance. For additional information about proctoring and online examinations, visit <http://dl.odu.edu/how-it-works/exams-proctors>.
