

The Perry Post

Message from the Dean

Dear Perry Honors College Students,

Last week was fabulous! On Thursday, we had a PHC dinner in Monarch Hall and it was great to see so many of you there. We are planning to have regular College events, and I ask you to attend as many as you can; engagement is a key element of honors education. On Friday, I had the honor to deliver the keynote address at ODU Model UN. I am very proud of all the PHC students who were there as staff and mentors. There is a part of my address that I would like to share with you: “As Dean of the Honors College, I work with high-achieving students every day. And what distinguishes truly exceptional students is not just intelligence — it is intellectual courage. The willingness to ask difficult questions. The discipline to research deeply. The humility to listen carefully.” Here at ODU and in the Perry Honors College, we believe that student success comes from empowerment — through development of independence, adaptability, and innovative thinking for a future in which our students will be life-long learners and fearless problem-solver. And we do that not by prescribing them a path but through providing them with the tools to forge their own path. I encourage you to always be curious and intellectually courageous. Go forge your path, Monarchs!
