

CAREER PATHWAYS

Professional development to bridge graduate school and career success

Succeeding in the Homestretch

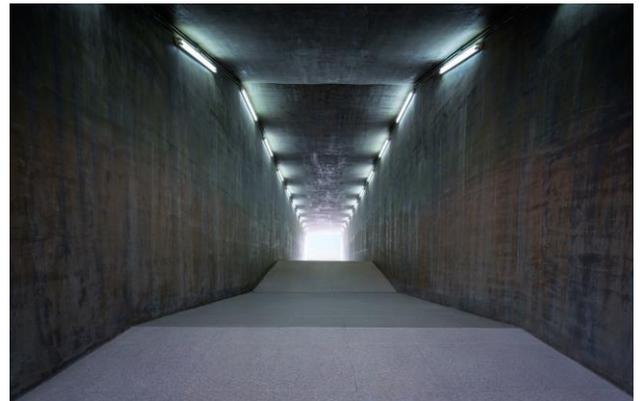

- Are you in the homestretch period – done with coursework and working on the final stages of degree completion?
- Do you struggle with being self-disciplined and self-reliant while studying for comprehensive exams or working on your thesis or dissertation?
- Do you need help defining and establishing your relationship with your faculty advisors?
- Are you experiencing stress, anxiety, and uncertainty?
- Are you having trouble with time management?

This workshop addresses these and other questions.

Panelists will offer strategies for effectively succeeding in the home stretch and going the last mile.

Panelists:

- Robin Dunbar, Strome College of Business
- Samantha New, College of Arts & Letters
- Gulsah Kemer, Darden College of Education & Professional Studies
- Wie Yusuf, Strome College of Business
